Report of Board of Education.

The whole number of schools supported in town the past year has been fourteen and are as follows: Kelley, No. 1; Potter, No. 2; Hall's Hill, No. 3; Smith Meeting House, No. 5; Cogswell, No. 6; Lougeetown, No. 7; Allen's Mills, No. 8; Corner, No. 9; Sanborn, No. 10; Gale, No. 11; Jones' Mills, No. 13; Griffin, No. 14; Lamprey, No. 17; Iron Works, No. 18.

Whole number different scholars attending these schools	215
“ of weeks of school for the year	326
Number of weeks available to each scholar	24

NO. 3.—HALL'S HILL.

Spring and fall term taught by Miss Edith M. Page. For the past three years this school has been under Miss Page's instruction, always giving good satisfaction, both to the district and to the board. We believe the past year's school has been very profitable to the scholars in this district. Good improvement was made in all branches taught. Whooping cough interfered somewhat with the regular attendance of the school.

Number scholars, 16; Number visitors, 6.

NO. 6.—COGSWELL.

Owing to the small number of scholars which would have attended the spring term, and the comparative ease with which they could be transported to the Iron Works, it was thought advisable to unite the two schools, which was done.

Fall term taught by Miss Gertrude M. Greenleaf of Laconia. This school contains some very smart, bright scholars. Improvement fair. One class in chart work showed thorough training on the part of the teacher.

Whole number of scholars, 8. Number of visitors, 11.

No. 7.—LOUGEETOWN

Spring and Fall terms taught by Miss Carrie M. Sargent. Miss Sargent has taught school in this district more or less for the past six years, but we think never with better satisfaction than during the past year. Order good, rhetorical exercises very interesting. Your committee was very much pleased to meet so many parents at the closing examination.

Number scholars 7.

No. 11.—GALE.

Spring term, Miss Lillian M. Eveleth. In this school Miss Eveleth fully sustained her former reputation as an earnest and faithful teacher, laboring hard for the intellectual advancement of her pupils, and, we are pleased to report, with excellent results. Number of scholars 14, number of visitors 25.

Fall term taught by Mr. Frank N. Merrill. By the solicitation of many of the parents I concluded to take charge of this term of school, and, I hope, with satisfactory results. Some of the older scholars in this school, seeming to realize fully that their school days must necessarily be drawing to a close, applied themselves diligently to their studies, thus giving courage to the teacher to believe that his efforts were being appreciated. One young miss of twelve summers is worthy of much credit, having completed and reviewed during the term "Greenleaf's Complete Arithmetic" also taking up "Brown's Academic Algebra" for the first time. She succeeded in going over the first 180 pages, manifesting a degree of thoroughness surprising at the closing examination. The closing exercises were witnessed by a goodly number of parents and friends. Number of scholars 12, number of visitors 28.

No. 18.—IRON WORKS.

Spring term taught by Mrs. Carrie M. Leyland. Mrs. Leyland ranks high as one of our most successful teachers, never leading the child over or around an obstacle, to do which, in the mind of your committee, is only to bewilder and leave in doubt, but, instead, always bringing up some familiar object or illustration to explain the principle of the lesson being taught. Improvement all that could be expected. Number of scholars 14, number of visitors 24.

Fall term, taught by Miss Maria B. Goodwin of Malden, Mass. Miss Goodwin is a college graduate, and was secured through Spaulding's Teachers' agency of Boston. She is a young lady of high literary attainments which would seem to warrant her in taking charge of a more advanced school. This was her first attempt at teaching an ungraded country school, and of course her methods of instruction differed somewhat from ours at first, yet she quickly adapted herself to the wants of this school, and succeeded fairly well. This school has undergone a change within the past five years. Then it was the largest school in town. Now the prospect is when the spring term opens it will be one of the smallest.

Number of scholars 13, number visitors 23.

NO. 1.—KELLEY DISTRICT.

First term of ten weeks and second term of fourteen weeks, taught by Miss Alice M. Ayer.

For several years Miss Ayer has proved herself a very successful teacher. By her ladylike manner she early gained the good will of her scholars, which aids much in creating a desire in the minds of her pupils to gain a thorough knowledge of their text books.

The last year's work proved equal to previous years and excellent results followed.

NO. 2.—POTTER DISTRICT.

First term of ten and second term of fourteen weeks, taught by Miss Annie M. Barber, who has had charge of this school for several terms in succession. It is very seldom we find both parents and scholars unanimous in their opinion. It affords your committee much pleasure to announce that this is the case.

Miss Barber is very thorough and the examinations showed that some very good work had been accomplished.

No. 5.

Summer term of 10 weeks taught by Mrs. Fannie Osborne.

Mrs. Osborne has taught several terms in town and has met with good success.

The exercises at the close were very interesting.

The most marked improvement was in reading which was much ahead of the average.

Second term of fourteen weeks taught by Miss Leita Fuller of Belmont.

Miss Fuller is a graduate of Gilmanton academy, class of '92, and since that time has been employed as teacher of the primary school at Belmont village.

One scholar, Laurel York, at the beginning of the term did not know his letters, at the close he was able to read and spell every thing on the chart.

Order very good.

No. 8.—ALLEN'S MILLS.

Two terms of school, one of ten the other of fourteen weeks, both taught by Miss Mary E. Weeks.

Miss Weeks is a faithful and energetic teacher and this school did most excellent work under her guidance. It is the smallest school in town but nevertheless an interesting school. Both parents and pupils are interested in the school and are ready to co-operate with the teacher.

No. 9.—CORNER.

Summer term of eight weeks. Fall term of sixteen weeks. Both terms taught by Miss Mabelle A. D. Moore. This school is composed of small scholars, there are thirty when all are registred, all under 13 years of age. The school made good advancement and the order was good. The recitations were prompt, showing an excellent degree of thoroughness. This school has been well visited by parents and friends from which we judge a proper interest was felt in the welfare of the school. Number of visitors first term 25, second term 35.

NO. 13.—JONES' MILLS.

Summer term of ten weeks, taught by Miss Caroline M. Jones, a most faithful and efficient teacher. I consider this a model school in every way. The order was perfect and the advancement excellent.

Second term of fourteen weeks, taught by Miss Annie E. Weeks. Miss Weeks sustained her former reputation as a faithful teacher in this school. The order and advancement were very satisfactory and the interest of the pupils in their studies quite noticeable and very gratifying to parents and committee.

NO. 14.—GRIFFIN.

First term of ten weeks and second term of fourteen weeks, taught by Miss Lena R. Parsons of Gilmanton Iron Works.

In this school Miss Parsons made her first attempt to wield the birch and a successful one. This school is composed of six very good scholars who are willing to obey the rules of their teacher and gain a thorough knowledge of their text books.

NO. 16.—SANBORN.

Summer term of ten weeks and fall term of fourteen weeks, both taught by Miss Sadie M. Farrar. Miss Farrar seemed to gain the good will of her pupils and the respect of their parents as well, thus insuring success in the school room. The pupils made a creditable advancement in their books and their recitations were quickly, promptly and well rendered. Number of visitors for the year 38.

NO. 17.—LAMPREY.

Summer term of ten weeks, taught by Annie E. Weeks. Miss Weeks is a faithful and efficient teacher, and also a teacher with experience. The school under her charge made a good advancement and was in every way satisfactory, I think.

Second term was commenced by Miss Linnie Newell of Massachusetts. The teacher was unfortunate in being taken sick at the end of two weeks and returned to her home. After some delay the school reopened with Nahum Wight as teacher. This was the first attempt at teaching by Mr. Wight, but he labored faithfully for the advancement of his pupils and succeeded admirably. The teacher and pupils seemed to be on the best of terms and worked together in a most creditable manner. Number of visitors first term 16, second term 12.

REMARKS.

In submitting our third annual report we wish to express our thanks for the uniform courtesy with which we have met during the past year. We are very much pleased to be able to report that the habit of visiting our schools by parents and friends of education is on the increase. The number of visitors this year being about one-third more than last year. We believe this is a step in the right direction and should be practiced a great deal more than it is. It is for the interest of our children, while attending school, that we hold out every inducement possible for them to gain a good education.

Our schools have with a few exceptions been intrusted to the guidance of the same corps of teachers employed last year, and they have succeeded in sustaining their reputation as being efficient teachers in the branches generally required to be taught. Yet in our opinion there is quite an opportunity for an improvement on our present method of imparting instruction to the youth. We believe we, as teachers, should not content ourselves with being able to teach those branches just as they are laid down in the book—asking questions and receiving answers, leaving no lasting impression on the mind for want of a thorough explanation by use of objects and illustration, but we should be so familiar with the subject in hand as to be able to dispense to a certain extent, so far as the teacher is concerned with the text book, explaining the lessons being taught from the recesses of our own minds, based upon the principles laid down in the text-books.

When the older men of the present time were in their school days from eleven to twenty years of age, the thought of teachers and of parents was almost wholly of those studies by means of which the youth could then be fitted to read and write intelligently and cipher as far as the "rule of three" proportion. This was thought to be all the schools needed to teach, or the boys needed to learn. If enough of these could be secured in the time assigned, the purpose of the educational system for the earlier period was regarded as satisfactorily realized. All that which lay beyond or outside of the limit of this as the conception was then formed was lightly esteemed or assigned to a secondary position.

The first and fundamental error into which they fell—and into which many of us fall now—was, as it seems to me, that they placed too low an estimate on what they regarded as of secondary importance or of no moment. That we have made considerable advancement—that system is beyond adoubt—yet we believe there is room for still greater improvement. With the more modern methods of instructions we believe the young lady or gentleman of from eighteen to twenty years of age can and should be thoroughly informed in all the English branches.

My thought, then, is that in our planning for the school years, there should be a wide outlook upon knowledge and a filling to the full of the time and opportunities. The teacher who starts the youth on the course of his higher education has, as we think, a grand privilege and a great duty. His or her office is a chief one because the first step is the one that determines the direction of the journey. This being the case, how important it is that we should keep abreast with the most improved methods of teaching, so that when we enter the school room we may be able to impart to those intrusted to our care the greatest amount of knowledge it is possible for them to learn. In short let us be practical, ever striving to create an enthusiasm and eagerness within the scholar that shall call for a greater amount of thought research.
